

REASON

Finding a Reasonable Faith in the Face of Doubt

....Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have.

1 Peter 3:15 NIV

Since Lazarus was such a big deal, why didn't Matthew, Mark, or Luke mention it?

If God is omnipotent and all knowing, do we truly have free will? If he knows us and our path, is this not predestination?

How can faith be reasonable when there is so much trauma
that affects us?

I experience God in creation. I can feel God's presence in worship. I have a hard time experiencing God in scripture. Is this normal? How can I bridge this spiritual gap?

In Genesis after God created the heavens and earth, where did the people from Nod come from?

What reasons would you give to someone to believe in God when God feels distant and uncaring?

Why did Jesus choose to come when He did?

Are there certain signs that need to be fulfilled before Jesus comes back a second time? Is there any way we can know when he is coming again?

Why is there suffering?

If God sometimes answers prayers and sometimes doesn't, why pray?

Is there a secret sauce?

How do we recognize God's voice?

How do you know that God
is speaking to you?
